SUMMIT SPONSORS

WANDA BRADLEY, NBCUniversal

On behalf of NBCUniversal, welcome to the WIDC Creating Confidence: International Summit.

"NBCUniversal is very proud of the work accomplished through the Women In the Director's Chair program," says Wanda Bradley, Vice President of Sales, NBCUniversal "We are very enthusiastic about Canadian talent and honoured to have another opportunity to invest in practical, hands-on initiatives that support and encourage female directors and their growth in the industry."

WIDC MAJOR SPONSOR

JOHN DIPPONG, Telefilm Canada

John Dippong is Regional Director of Industry Promotion – English Market. John joined Telefilm in 1997, and has held several positions including 12 years as Regional Feature Film Executive. In his current role, he is responsible for managing Telefilm's Promotion Program, as well as identifying and implementing regional strategies, partnerships and special initiatives which respond to Telefilm Canada's corporate and promotional objectives - to stimulate demand for Canadian content and help to build a vibrant Canadian audio-visual industry.

"Telefilm Canada has been a major sponsor of the WIDC program since its inception in 1997. Telefilm's primary mandate is the promotion of Canadian talent, and of course this is dependent on our content creators getting their projects from the idea stage into production and out to audiences. WIDC has helped scores of women directors hone their skills in order to navigate the tricky path from idea to realization. They have alumnae from coast-to-coast, and we are proud to have supported many of their post-WIDC projects. We have also supported recent winners of the WIDC Feature Film Award, including Katrin Bowen, Lulu Keating, Ana Valine, and most recently, Siobhan Devine, 2013 winner of the WIDC Feature Film Award. The announcement of the 2014 winner will take place at the Summit closing session. If there is a consistent attribute among past winners, it is the time and attention they've spent reviewing their strengths and building their strategies for the future. It's hard to over-estimate the importance of reflection and planning. We look forward to learning the results of the summit and will be tracking this year's cohort of directors with great interest."

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S FILM FESTIVAL REPRESENTATIVES

GUEST DIRECTOR (International)

GAYLENE PRESTON, Filmmaker, New Zealand

Gaylene Preston's career has spanned three decades, and her generosity of spirit and her powerful mentorship and advocacy skills have been central to the development of New Zealand's filmmaking community.

After studying painting at Ilam School of Fine Arts at the University of Canterbury in Christchurch, NZ, Preston began making films while working at Fulbourn Psychiatric Hospital in Cambridge U.K. Since her return to her homeland in 1977, she has built an impressive body of independent work, several of which have become much-loved New Zealand classics. Gaylene Preston's award-winning films have screened extensively at international festivals including Venice, Sundance, Toronto, London, Chicago, Sydney, Melbourne and New Zealand.

Her most recent feature (2010) Home by Christmas, won critical and popular acclaim and remains one of the top 15 grossing New Zealand films of all time at the New Zealand box office. She was appointed the inaugural filmmaker Arts Foundation Laureate in 2001 and is an Officer of the New Zealand Order of Merit recognising her services to filmmaking.

Her latest project, Hope and Wire, a six-part television drama series written, produced and directed by Preston, is currently in post production being sound mixed at Park Road Post by Mike Hedges (Oscar nominated this year for The Desolation of Smaug) and graded by Clare Burlinson with cinematographer Thomas Burstyn CSC (Defiance).

Hope and Wire focuses on the social and psychological upheaval during the Christchurch earthquakes and aftermath of 2010/11, starring a strong ensemble cast lead by U.K. actor Bernard Hill (LOTR, Titanic).

The aftershocks run deep.
